

GetWellNetwork Expands Reach with Five New Implementations

GetWellNetwork continued its emergence as the national leader in interactive patient services with several recent implementations. After opening the new Morgan Stanley Children's Hospital of New York-Presbyterian late last year, GWN continued to expand its presence in New York at St. Vincent's Midtown as part of CEO Len Walsh's reinvention project. GWN also partnered with Surgical Alliance of Nashville, TN, as they cut the ribbon on their first speciality hospital in Columbus, OH, the New Albany Surgical Hospital. Lastly, GWN headed west with an implementation at Centura Parker Adventist Hospital. "At Parker Adventist, we design health care around the patient, and the GetWellNetwork is a great illustration of that," says Terry Ritchey, RN,BSN,Chief Nursing Officer. "The education components of GWN reduce patients' fear, and increase their compliance, by explaining what patients can expect while they're being treated and after they leave. And being able to send e-mails, surf the Web and watch movies will do wonders to keep patients and their families entertained while they're here."
